The red lines represent the trim zone, anything outside the red line will probably be cut off. If you want a full bleed to the edge, your picture should be over the red line and to the edge so there will be no white line on the edge of the page. The red lines are 0.25 inches from the edge of the page. The yellow lines represent the safe zone, anything outside the yellow line could possibly be cut off if there are problems. If you want a particular element on your page to be away from the edge of the page it should be inside the yellow line. The yellow lines are 0.50 inches from the edge of the page. The green line represents the center fold of the page and is only shown for clarification of the trim and safe zones.
